

Potted History (from old records):

- 1875 Elfin Grove Villas in Teddington was given by Thomas Chappell (of the piano firm) for a hospital for the poor and destitute of Teddington who formerly had to attend Richmond Infirmary. It had four beds, and patients paid 1/- a day (now 5p). In the ensuing years, money was raised by annual subscriptions, donations, bazaars, fetes, concerts, and theatrical performances.
- 1914 Beds were increased to 24 but the Elfin Grove site was too small for the growing population and there was no more space for expansion.
- 1919 The Medical Committee now began to look for possible sites where a new hospital and health centre could be built as a living war memorial with an obelisk outside. The old nursery land on which the present hospital stands was acquired for the price of £2,000 from Messrs R & D Anderson, and a member of the family gave a donation of £1,000 to the building fund.
- 1875 – 1924
According to the Annual Reports, the patients treated at the Hospital from 1875 – 1924 totalled 12,731. Casualties averaged 400 a year.
- 1924 – 1934
The money to build the new hospital was raised entirely by voluntary and charitable efforts. The Swan and Stag Volume is a collection of magazines which was published annually in aid of the fund and the whole volume is held at Twickenham Library. The Swan and Stag became the hospital emblem.
- 1928 Lord Dawson of Penn (Royal Physician) laid the foundation stone that is embedded in the side return wall by the front door. Buried at the back of the stone are all the benefactors' and donors' names. The ground at the back of the Hospital was the Hospital's kitchen garden where fresh fruit and vegetables were grown and used for patient and staff meals.
- 1929 The new hospital – known then as the Teddington, Hampton Wick and District Memorial Hospital – was opened for patients.
- 1933 An Operating Theatre was built as a memorial to Dr. I. Coalbank (a well known GP) followed by a Children's Ward and single rooms for Private Patients.
- 1939 The Hospital became a Casualty Clearing Station with 40 beds held ready for all war-time emergencies and casualties. A bomb blast wall was built in front of the Hospital, which saved it from severe damage when the church on the opposite corner received a direct hit.
- 1948 The Hospital was taken over by the National Health Service, and was the largest General Practitioners' Unit under the North West Regional Board and assigned to the South West Middlesex Group of Hospitals. Subsequently, the Hospital was managed by the West Middlesex Hospital and Hounslow and Spelthorne Health Authority.

In October 1983 the League organised a 24 hour candle lit Vigil on the front forecourt of the Hospital. Over 2,000 people attended and signed the Vigil Book. A Vigil Candle burned for 24 hours and a fax was sent to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher to record the event.

In November 1983, Health Minister Kenneth Clarke received a delegation headed by MP Toby Jessel. In December of the same year Kenneth Clarke reprieved the Hospital and designated 27 General Practitioner Beds.

Teddington Memorial Hospital Action and Steering Committees were formed comprising the League of Friends and General Practitioners to explore NHS Trust Status An application for stand alone NHS Trust Status (funded by the League) was made to the Secretary of State for Health in January 1992. Following visits by Health Secretary, Tom Sackville, Toby Jessel MP, and Health Secretary in the House of Lords, Baroness Cumberlege, a decision was made by the Secretary of State to grant the Hospital shadow Trust Status from April 1993 to run as a pilot scheme for other community hospitals throughout the country before becoming fully operational in 1995.

Trust Board Chairman, Maggi Lyne, and Non-Executive Directors, Pamela Bryant MBE, John Ryan and John Symonds, were appointed by the Secretary of State and North West Thames Regional Health Authority in February. In April, Trust Board Executive Directors were appointed.

The League undertook another Appeal in April for £150,000 to further improve the outpatient facilities to include a minor surgery unit and supporting clinical areas.

1994 Work completed on the outpatient and minor surgery extension, and the final cost in the region of £185,000 was funded by a League Appeal.

- 2004 The League launched an Appeal for £900,000 to fund a large project of modernisation for the Hospital which included a brand new X-Ray Department equipped with Digital and Fibre Optic Equipment and a purpose built and equipped Rehabilitation Unit. The existence of this very modern X Ray Department and equipment was a major factor in achieving the successful funding from the Department of Health to establish the new Walk in Centre.

As a major stakeholder of the Hospital, the League acknowledges its moral responsibility to safeguard the huge investment that has been made by the community through the League of Friends for the improvement of facilities and equipment since the hospital was built.

Since the completion of the X-Ray Department, the League has raised funds for a number of other items which total around £100,000. In total, approximately £8 million has now been raised through the League of Friends for improvements and equipment.
